In 1951, the school traded places with Pacific Beach Elementary School to accommodate the growing student population during the post-World War II growth boom.

Pacific Beach Middle School consists of 10 permanent buildings built on 13.8 acres. The campus features a two-story library, multi-use media center, counseling center, renovated science lab and design classrooms, and a technology lab. A comprehensive Physical and Health Education program includes a joint use field, courts, and a dance and fitness room. In addition, Pacific Beach students have access to a variety of indoor and outdoor areas, including a school garden, a large auditorium, and a music and band room. A covered lunch area also serves as an amphitheater where students gather during school and programs are held throughout the year.
